By Joyce Handzo

Pnina Radbill, licensed electrologist and owner of Perfect Touch Electrolysis in Nutley, runs her business with an enthusiastic outlook. "There is no better feeling than helping women feel positive about themselves. I love my job!"

Her clients recognize Pnina's desire to ensure the best results. One of her favorite comments from a customer is: "I can tell you really want me to look good."

Perfect Touch Electrolysis is dedicated to helping people maintain a smooth-skinned, impeccably groomed look through electrolysis, a safe and permanent process of removing unwanted hair. Pnina has a simple, yet effective, objective for each client. "When they look their best, they get the best out of life."

She explains the process. "We use all modalities of electrolysis, including multi-needle so a person can take control of unwanted hair and let their beautiful skin shine through."

Pnina Radbill began her career in 2005, earning her electrolysis certification from Berkowitz School of Electrolysis in New York. She worked abroad for eight years gaining invaluable experience using customized methods for all hair and skin types. Relocating back to America, Pnina was energized and decided to pursue her field and take it to the next level. She completed her New Jersey state license and opened up her own practice, Perfect Touch Electrolysis.

Pnina described how women come into her office with unwanted facial hair, often feeling self-conscious and embarrassed. These women leave her office radiating confidence, assured that they are in good hands.

She explains that electrolysis is the only answer for permanent hair removal. "Although starting takes courage," she said, "it's a short term investment for permanent life-changing results. As busy women, it's often hard to prioritize our own appearance which is so important to us women and how we feel about ourselves."

There are three methods of electrolysis: thermolysis, galvanic and blend.

Thermolysis is the most commonly used method today. Thermolysis produces heat very quickly inside the hair follicle. However, it has the highest regrowth and the most potential for scarring.

The galvanic method is by far the most effective type of electrolysis. This method uses a direct current that creates a reaction that destroys the growing cells at the root. Few people know this highly specialized skill and demanding approach.

The blend method is a combination of thermolysis and the galvanic method. Blend is more effective than regular thermolysis due to the galvanic current involved. However as always, one must be very careful in choosing a skilled and experienced electrologist.

Electrolysis is the only answer for permanent hair removal and people of all ages, skin colors, and hair colors can see incredible results using these methods.

Pnina loves to show her clients that they can experience satisfying results and look and feel their absolute best. What makes Pnina so unique is her passion for electrolysis stems from her desire to help women feel empowered, confident, and beautiful. Her clients agree that she truly has the perfect touch!
